

Late Tuesday, the protesters were yet to disperse fully with some lighting candles to indicate a night vigil. "After the Tis Hazari incident, we feel scared and humiliated," said a constable.

Most of the anger was directed at a High Court order Sunday stating that "no coercive action will be taken against lawyers by police" — three days after a parking row between lawyers and police personnel at Tis Hazari court complex snowballed into a clash.

The protest also comes a day after lawyers went on a rampage at Saket court, with a video of a constable being evening. Around 9 am Tuesday, 150 personnel gathered and started sending out photos and videos of the protest on WhatsApp groups. Soon, the crowd swelled. By noon, around 2,000 police personnel and their families had gathered at the HQ, shouting slogans and holding placards, some with photos of previous Delhi Police chief Kiran Bedi.

Around 12.40 pm, amid cries of "Save the Khaki", Patnaik appeared to try and defuse the situation. "These are testing times for us and for a while, the Delhi Police is undergoing such testing times," he said.
